“A mother, father, and their infant daughter enrolled in October 2018 with Home Visiting and is currently participating with other programs at PB&J. Parents identified areas that need support such as housing, employment, reunifying with son, and mother continuing her education. The father was able to keep employment which led to them getting a safe home for their family. Their son has been reunited with the parents and the CYFD case has been dismissed. Mother also attended and completed the Nurturing Parenting groups though PB&J. Parents connected with the Early Intervention team at PB&J to work on child development with their daughter. Their son is still connected with his Early Intervention team that he has been working with since he was born. Mother recently stated that she is going to enroll in classes this upcoming fall now that she has completed requirements from CYFD. Throughout the last 9 months, the family has reached milestones and continues to work to maintain a healthy life for their children and themselves.”

“PB&J has given me a new outlook on life. PB&J has made me a better father as well as a better person. I learned how to be more patient and loving. I didn’t have contact with my son or his mother and I didn’t know how I would even start a conversation with his mom. Now PB&J helped with setting contact and preparing me for those conversations that I now have. Thank you PB&J, for everything you do.”
